

Levittowner Tells About Wife's Death

CAMDEN, N.J. — Richard Sparks, 18 Vineyard Road, Violetwood, Levittown, was called to the witness stand in Camden County Court shortly before 2 o'clock today.

Sparks' wife, Helen, was one of 15 persons whom Dr. Albert L. Weiner, 43-year-old Erlton, N.J., psychiatrist, is accused of killing through "gross negligence" which caused a fatal attack of what New Jersey claims is serum hepatitis.

Falls Officer Barred From Being Viewer

By KENNETH J. RABEN
Courier-Times Staff Writer

CAMDEN, N.J.—The legal system which Falls Township police officer James McManamon hopes will convict Dr. Albert L. Weiner has barred him from being a spectator at Weiner's trial in Camden County Court here.

Dr. Weiner is being tried on charges of causing the deaths of 15 of his patients. One of those patients was McManamon's attractive 25-year-old wife, Miriam Jean, who died Oct. 18, 1960.

The tall, well-built police officer has been in court since the case opened Monday, listening intently as the jurors were chosen and taking careful notes.

McManamon was pleased that the testimony was about to begin. But, yesterday, after a hearty lunch of Yankee pot roast, vegetables and several cups of coffee, McManamon received a shock.

Separate Witnesses

When court opened after lunch, Louis Pantages, chief defense counsel asked the Judge to separate the lay witness from the expert witnesses and ask them to leave the courtroom.

Pantages told Judge Edward V. Martino he did not think it fair that the prosecution's lay witnesses hear the testimony to be given by the experts.

He said he has never been told the names and addresses of the prosecution witnesses. "They probably will be patients, former patients and spouses, of some of the principal defendants," the defense lawyer said.

Good Evening!

Russia and the U.S. "playing chicken."

The Reds have drawn up their tanks on the other side of the Berlin border. Now the tanks sit facing each other and soon there might be a shot heard around the world.

Slowly but surely the Russians are nibbling away at access into East Berlin and the tanks seem ready to stop the U.S. civilians from entering.

Where will it end?

Mayor Dilworth in Philadelphia has been using some of the roughest political insults ever heard in a campaign.

Why? What's worrying him? Apparently the Democrats have the election in the bag down there.

Up to when the Mayor started it appeared the Democrats were running against the newspapers. Congressman Green gave the candidates orders not to talk and then yelled nobody was quoting them.

Politics moves into high gear in this area as candidates from both parties meet face to face tonight at the Hugh Carrella Community Center in Fairless Hills.

The public has been invited to come and listen to the candidates at 7:30 p.m. This should give the voters a chance to compare.

Weatherman says good football weather this weekend. That Notre Dame-Northwestern game promises to be a good one.

On Sunday the Eagles will have to watch out. Those down-in-the-mouth teams can spoil many a championship club. The Redskins have lost 14 straight but they can't be taken lightly.

Money is a poor man's credit card.

It is never wise to argue with a fool — bystanders don't know which is which.

Be careful.

Performed Autopsy

Preceding Sparks to the stand was Dr. William Silverman, a pathologist who filled the courtroom with medical language for almost an hour. He performed the autopsy on Mrs. Sparks four and one half hours after her death Nov. 5, 1960.

Dr. Silverman explained the procedures he followed and read from what he called an "autopsy protocol." This is a preliminary summary of the autopsy findings. He said, according to this report, that Mrs. Sparks died of acute liver necrosis. The cause of the necrosis, he said, could not be identified.

Necrosis is a medical term meaning "mortification or decay," and is a result of some other disease.

"Faulty Technique"

The state contends that serum hepatitis, which is easily transmitted through the bloodstream, caused the 15 deaths and illness to 36 others because of faulty technique in administering hypodermics and sterilization processes on the part of Dr. Weiner.

A portion of Dr. Silverman's summary indicated that he and others who performed a clinical study on Mrs. Sparks thought that the necrosis might have been caused by serum hepatitis.

Camden County Prosecutor Norman Heims hammered away at Dr. Silverman in an attempt to establish this point. But Dr. Silverman stood on his original testimony: cause of the necrosis was unknown.

Various Forms

Cross-examination by chief defense counsel Louis J. Pantages reaffirmed Dr. Silverman's conclusion and further indicated that the death may have been caused by a number of factors, all of which can bring about the various forms of hepatitis.

Pantages and the defense have indicated they will try to establish that a different form of hepatitis not so easily transmitted although it is known as infectious hepatitis, was responsible for many of the deaths.

A previous witness today, Dr. Alexander Price, specialist in internal medicine, had testified that Mrs. Sparks' death certificate listed the infectious and not the serum type of liver ailment.

This diagnosis, he said, was (Continued on Page 3, Col. 6)

Good Weather For Football

Today's fair and cool weather will turn into clear and cold tonight, according to the forecaster, with a low temperature tonight in the 30s.

Tomorrow is expected to be sunny and a little warmer, bringing an afternoon high in the 60s. The high today was to be only 56 degrees.

But though it may be cool, at least we can look forward to no precipitation through the weekend, the weatherman says.

Yesterday's high temperature was 58 degrees and the overnight low was 46.

Incidentally, it's more likely to be light at getting up time Sunday morning, because the clocks are set back an hour to standard time at 2 a.m. Sunday so the sun will come up an hour earlier.

Student Asks Better Judgment In Crisis

A 17-year-old Pennsbury High School student this morning appealed for "better adult judgment in the current world crisis" when he addressed over 500 students attending the Pennsylvania Association of Student Councils.

"What kind of a world is it," asked Danny McGoldrick, of Levittown, an outstanding senior and president of the state association, which is now convening for three days at Pennsbury High School.

McGoldrick answered himself: "If you pick up your newspaper, you will see the world in which you live by these headlines: 'Soviet Refuffs U.S.'; 'Russia Fires 24th Blast'; 'Allies Seek Free Access To Berlin'; and 'Canada

Youth Fined $100 For False Alarms

Larry Warren, 19, of 911 Mansion St., Bristol Borough, was fined $100 by Justice of the Peace Eugene S. Spadaccino last night for his part in turning in three false fire alarms on Monday night.

The spree began at 11 p.m. Monday when an alarm box was pulled at Wood and Lincoln Sts. Ten minutes later, an alarm was turned in from Walnut and Cedar Sts.

The final alarm came from Madison St. and Wilson Ave. at 11:25 p.m. At that point a witness saw four boys in a car drive up, get out and pull the alarm.

The witness reported the boys' descriptions to borough police, and Fire Chief William Bolton and officers Michael J. Manto began an investigation.

Yesterday afternoon the four were arrested. The three juveniles, two are 17 and one is 15, were turned over to Bucks County juvenile authorities on delinquency charges.

Police Chief Vincent Faragalli says that a total of nine trucks and 100 firemen responded to the three general alarms.

Kennedy To Visit Area

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy will deliver a campaign speech in New Jersey next Thursday for Richard J. Hughes, the Democratic challenger for governor against former Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell.

The trip to Trenton, where he will speak, will be the President's first active campaign move in the 1961 off-year elections.

In New Jersey, Hughes is the underdog against Mitchell, who was labor secretary in the Eisenhower administration. The former GOP chief executive recently spent a day in New Jersey campaigning for Mitchell.

The White House said Kennedy would fly to Trenton next Thursday evening to participate "in an outdoor homecoming rally for Hughes."

Ex-Diplomat Is Convicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal court jury today convicted former diplomat Irvin C. Scarbeck of slipping secrets to Communist agents in Poland.

Scarbeck, 41, was found guilty on three of the four counts in the indictment.

The jury acquitted him of a charge of unlawfully removing a secret dispatch from the U.S. Embassy in Warsaw.

A department spokesman called the arrival of Soviet tanks in East Berlin a belated admission of Russia's responsibility under post-war agreements for the Communist sector of the divided city.

"The dangers in the Berlin situation," said Press Officer Lincoln White, "have arisen precisely because the Soviet authorities have been permitting the East Germans to violate agreed four-power arrangements while attempting to deny this clear Soviet responsibility."

"If these headlines are an indication of the world situation then, what possible hope is there for the future? Why is there so much unrest? Why can't we live together peacefully?" McGoldrick asked before a hushed audience of future leaders of America.

"Open Mind"

"I believe it is because we do not understand one another, that we have not reached the point of maturity, where we can keep an open mind about the beliefs of other people.

Tanks On Border Keep Watch As Troops Escort Yank Car

BERLIN (UPI)—U.S. Army troops escorted an American-licensed automobile into East Berlin for the third day in a row today under the watchful protection of tanks that had been rolled up to the border.

There were two civilians in the car flanked by an armed convoy. It swept past Communist border guards without hindrance, circled around in East Berlin, and returned to the West three minutes later.

The move came as 30 Soviet tanks lay parked less than a mile from the border after their arrival Thursday night.

In today's incident, three jeeps escorted a car into East Berlin without opposition. Two jeeps were in front, one behind.

Three tanks remained behind the white line marking the East-West Berlin border at the Friedrichstrasse crossing point. Two armored personnel carriers also stood by. Two other tanks were held in reserve around the corner.

Each jeep carried four MP's, wearing bullet-proof vests, helmets and carrying M14 rifles. The only incident of any consequence today occurred when Communist police turned back a U.S. military police sedan that tried to leave East Berlin by a route closed to foreigners. An American spokesman said the sedan, carrying a captain and an enlisted man in uniform, left the Heinrichstrasse crossing point under protest when they were barred by East Berlin police. He said the car then returned to (Continued on Page 3, Col. 1)

Five Injured As Truck, Station Wagon Crash

A tractor trailer driven by a Levittown man collided head-on with a station wagon in Warminster Township yesterday, injuring five persons.

The truck driver, James Stewart, 34, 51 Nickle Hill Road, Levittown, was not harmed, according to Warminster Township police.

Two of seven persons riding in the station wagon were injured seriously and three suffered minor injuries.

Debbie Allen, 6, and Greg Allen, 8, children of Mrs. Joan Allen, 31, 357 Rettop Place, Warminster, were admitted to Abington Hospital.

Debbie received severe scalp laceration and Greg a possible skull fracture. They were reported in good condition this morning.

Big 16-Story Saturn Soars Eight Minutes

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The United States successfully launched the mightiest rocket ever built in America and perhaps the world today and sent it on an eight-minute maiden flight out over the Atlantic.

It marked one of the biggest steps this nation has yet taken toward the conquest of space.

The rocket launched today was a 460-ton space-age colossus named Saturn — a giant space machine that stands as tall as a 16-story building and is ticketed to carry teams of astronauts on roundtrips to the moon by the end of the decade.

It was launched on its maiden flight at 11:06 a.m. EDT and rose from the sands of this missile test center in a blinding burst of flame and smoke.

The noise generated by the rocket's 1.3 million-pound thrust engines was thunderous, but not nearly as loud as expected.

Saturn's sole mission was to prove it could fly. Scientists had said they would be satisfied with just one minute of flight on this first journey, but to their delight, the towering rocket flew the full eight minutes for which it was scheduled.

Carries Dummy Stages

Today's Saturn carried dummy second and third upper stages that still remain to be perfected. It flew along a path that carried it about 90 miles into space and landed 225 miles out in the Atlantic Ocean.

Defense Department experts said the Saturn is possibly twice as powerful as rockets now being used by the Soviet Union.

Bart Slattery, of the federal space agency's information office, said scientists considered the flight a success after the rocket had been airborne for about one minute. At that point, the Saturn successfully passed the point where aerodynamic stresses and the chances of failure are the greatest.

The huge rocket exceeded all expectations. A 10-hour countdown which began before midnight Thursday night went perfectly except for two delays of 34 and 32 minutes because of cloudy weather.

The Saturn actually was in the air for eight minutes, exactly what scientists had hoped for.

Trade The Car For A Saturn

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Scientist Kurt Debus said today that if all the tankage capacity of the Saturn rocket were filled with gasoline, there would be enough to run the average automobile for 250 years.

Tanks On

West Berlin through the Friedrichstrasse crossing point.

In East Berlin an estimated 30 Soviet tanks waited hidden in a bombed-out site about three-quarters of a mile east of the border. About 20 American tanks were parked about a mile and three-quarters from the boundary on the other side.

Move Guns Up

Before dawn the British moved up three 50-ton Centurion tanks about a mile from the border on the 17th of June Street in their sector. Then they set up recoilless rifles for anti-tank defense at the Brandenburg Gate border area, and added 50 infantrymen to reinforce the British company permanently stationed there.

But seven hours later when the British withdrew their tanks a spokesman said that "We considered the situation quiet enough to pull them back."

The Soviet tanks, with black-uniformed crewmen, were deployed in East Berlin after dusk, clattering down Unter Den Linden and stopping at a point lying less than a mile from both the Brandenburg Gate and the Friedrichstrasse crossing.

The Russians moved their tanks into a courtyard concealed from view by large buildings. Later in the morning the British tanks moved up to behind the Soviet war memorial, 200 yards from the border.

The official Communist party newspaper "Neues Deutschland" charged that "dangerous border provocations of the American occupiers" were designed to create a "second Sarajevo." Sarajevo was where Austrian Archduke Franz Ferdinand was assassinated, touching off World War I.

After daylight, two East German police armored personnel carriers drove up to within 200 yards of the Friedrichstrasse border crossing carrying about 20 policemen armed with machine pistols. Two jeep loads of police also were in the border area reinforcing about 50 Communist police on border duty.

The action brought to a new climax the tension in this isolated city where Americans for a third time Thursday entered East Berlin with combat-ready soldiers, exercising rights to civilians to cross the border unhindered by East German Communist guards.

O'Brien Warmly Endorsed By Ike

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—Judge Henry X. O'Brien of Pittsburgh today received the warm endorsement of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in the jurist's bid for a seat on the state Supreme Court.

Eisenhower said after a half hour conference with the Allegheny County Common Pleas Court judge that he was "delighted to have the opportunity" to speak with O'Brien.

"He can count on my vote Nov. 7 and I hope the citizens of Pennsylvania will do likewise," Eisenhower said. "I commend to all of you Judge O'Brien."

O'Brien said he has been "well received" on his tours throughout the state recently in his campaign to unseat Supreme Court Justice Anne X. Alpern, also of Pittsburgh. Miss Alpern is serving an interim term and is the Democratic nominee for a full 21-year term. The contest is the only statewide election on the fall ballot.

The Republican nominee, accompanied by his campaign manager, Mervin Sneath, said he was "grateful" for Eisenhower's support. He said he and the former President discussed the courts "and legal philosophy."

O'Brien declined to evaluate his chances in the election against Miss Alpern.

Friends Pay Tribute To 50-Yr. Teacher

By CAROLYN CALKINS
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Miss Marion H. Longshore, 76, was surprised and "overwhelmed" when she appeared at a Halloween party at the Middletown Friends Meeting School last night to find the group singing, "Happy Birthday to You."

The surprise party was given to honor Miss Longshore as she plans to retire after teaching Sunday School at the Friends Meeting over 50 years.

Miss Longshore, who began teaching in 1907, was presented a small tree containing over 50 silver dollars which she will give to her favorite charity.

"I have spent most of my life trying to nurture spiritual values that are a part of children's life—love, sense of wonder, praise and thanksgiving. I have done a great deal of traveling for the American Friends Service Committee in an attempt to instill these values," said Miss Longshore.

She was born at the Brookvale Farm in Langhorne and has lived in this area most of her life. She now lives at 118 East Maple Ave., Langhorne.

Miss Longshore began her work with the Friends in Baltimore, Md., and was the first secretary of the Washington Friends Meeting. From there she worked with young people in several parts of the mid-west including Ohio and Indiana.

miles of its planned target area 225 miles southeast of the Cape on a near-perfect flight.

An automatic sequence device took over the countdown by electronics at six minutes and 14 seconds before the planned launch time. This mechanism is designed to detect automatically any electrical or mechanical malfunction in the rocket during the last few minutes on the pad.

Erupt Into Action

As the countdown reached zero, the Saturn's eight-engine booster erupted into action in a fireworks-like display on the pad.

Clamps held the huge rocket to the pad for about three seconds, while it built up full power.

When the clamps were released, the Saturn hovered for an instant and then began to climb almost agonizingly slow. The giant rose almost vertically at first and then leaned into a slight arch toward the southeast.

It climbed into a high arching trajectory that carried it through high clouds above the cape.

The rocket disappeared from view four minutes after it was launched.

Engines On Schedule

Scientists said four of the engines burned for 109 seconds and the other four for 115 seconds—about the time planned.

There was no provision for recovery of the booster and it sank into the Atlantic where it plunged.

A number of radios on board the Saturn, however, radioed reams of information that was recorded on many miles of magnetic tape at tracking stations.

3 Charged With Looting

Three Levittown youths were arrested in Bristol Township yesterday and charged with burglarizing coin-operated vending machines in two township laundromats.

Two of the youths were the same two who earlier yesterday had been arrested by Middletown Township police for allegedly burglarizing soft drink machines in two Middletown service stations.

The police identified the boys as Jack Keller, 18, 43 Pineneedle Road, Plumbridge, Chris J. Olszewski, 18, 178 Lower Orchard Drive, and Edward Scott Edgerly, 17, 23 Long Loop Road, Lower Orchard.

The Bristol Township police accused the youths specifically with stealing coins from a soap vending machine in a laundromat in the Violetwood Shopping Center and from a plastic bag vending machine in a laundromat in the Midway Shopping Center. The total amount of cash taken, according to the police, amounted to "only a few dollars."

Justice of the Peace Joseph M. Haines ordered that Edgerly be held for juvenile authorities and set bail at $500 each on Keller and Olszewski. Keller posted the bail and was released. Olszewski was unable to post bail and was committed to Bucks County Prison.

The suspects now await hearing on charges of burglary, larceny, receiving stolen goods and conspiracy.

Khrushchev

ment Voroshilov apologize for his "errors."

Voroshilov sat on the dais a few feet away from Khrushchev, but "for reasons of health" he asked the chairman to read his statement.

Voroshilov first expressed approval of all the statements in Khrushchev's speeches to the congress on Oct. 17 and 18.

He then asked the congress to accept his regrets for "the mistakes in the early stages of the struggle against the party."

He said he had not been aware of the factional activities of the "anti-party" group and did not participate in them until June, 1957.

The old Bolshevik added that during his 58 years in the Communist party he had never participated in factional troubles.

Voroshilov concluded: "All my views stem from my deep dedication to the party and people. Apart from those I have no other interests."

The delegates received the statement coldly and applauded little.

Earlier, it was disclosed that Khrushchev has informed world leaders that the Soviet Union plans to continue its nuclear test series as planned despite appeals not to set off its 50-megaton super-bomb.

In a letter to Ghana President Kwame Nkrumah, made public Thursday night, Khrushchev said the Soviet Union "was forced" to carry out the tests.

The disclosure came on the eve of Khrushchev's third major address before the 22nd Communist party congress in which he will sum up his new program for communism which will be voted upon by the delegates.

Blames West

Khrushchev said the Western Big Three and other NATO countries had threatened Russia with nuclear war over the Berlin question. He added that the Soviet Union is staging the test explosions "so that mankind should never experience the horrors of nuclear war."

Last night, an adult spoke to the group. He was Chester Merrow, a congressman from New Hampshire, who told the audience at an assembly held in the school auditorium, "What the U.S. Role Is In Foreign Affairs."

'More Active Role'

He said that the U.S. should play a more active role in foreign affairs, and that we should be on the offensive rather than the defensive, such as in Berlin now.

Merrow said he would approve of increase in defense spending to build our forces abroad and more foreign aid, for use by the Peace Corps.

Merrow said he would rather fight, than give in our dealings with the Russians.

Ends Tomorrow

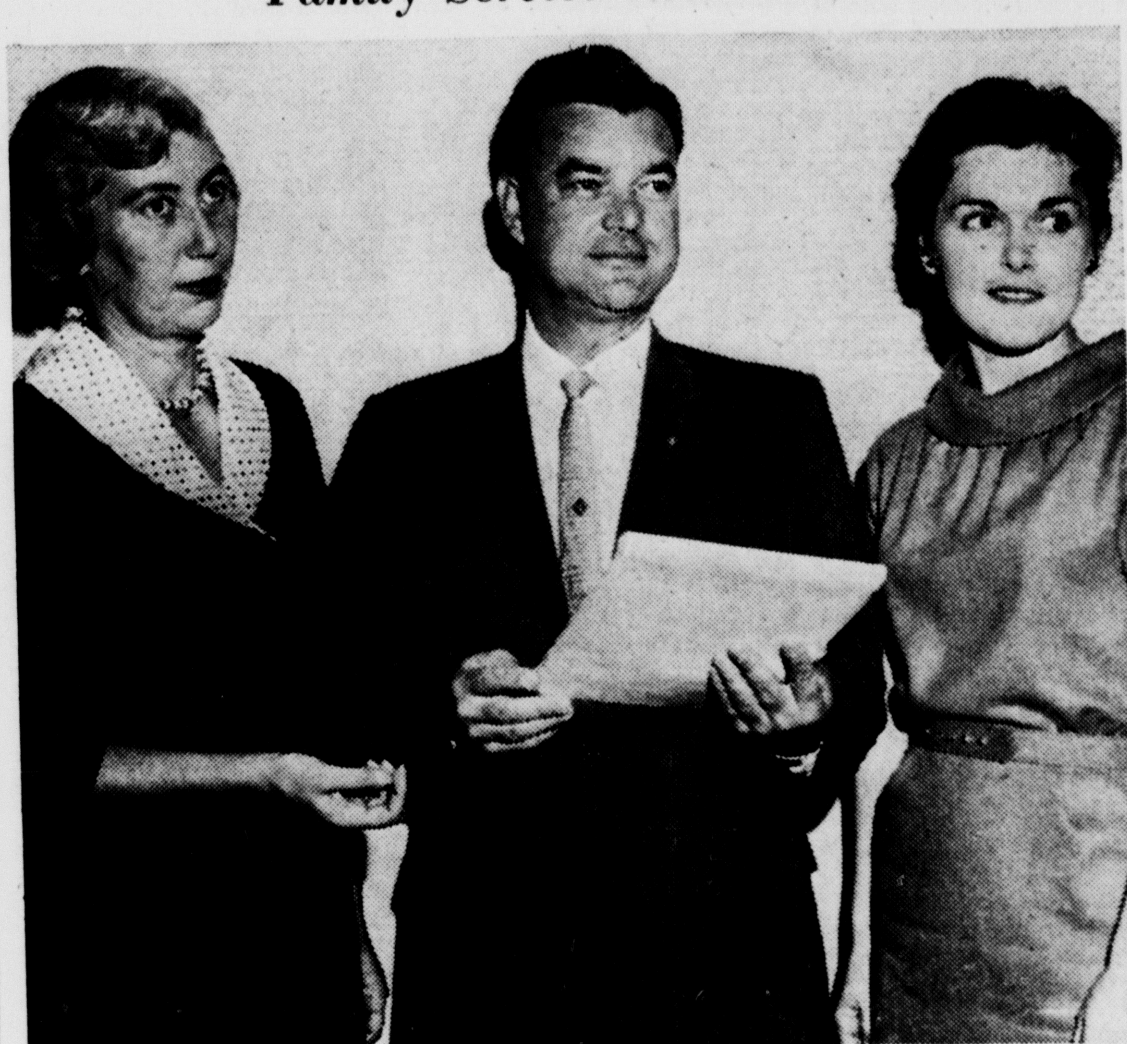

The conference, which opened with registration yesterday, drew students and their teacher sponsors from throughout Pennsylvania for this 25th annual affair. The visiting students and sponsors will take part in numerous activities today and tomorrow, including discussion groups and conferences.

fense counsel stated.

He said, "The nature of the many (lay) witnesses raises a question as to their competence from a medico-psychiatric standpoint."

Heine Doesn't Object

Camden County Prosecutor Norman Heine said he had no objection to the defense motion. He said he thought it was fair, but suggested that all lay witnesses, both for the prosecution and defense, be kept in a separate room.

After a few more argumentative remarks from both sides, Judge Martino approved the motion. He said since there was not enough time to provide a separate room for the lay witnesses, they should leave the court and stand in the hallway.

Heine asked any lay witnesses present in court to stand. McManamon got to his feet, as did the husbands of three other dead women, former patients of Dr. Weiner.

McManamon Protests

As several of the lay witnesses began to leave, McManamon, who had been seated in the second row of courtroom seats, spoke up.

"Your Honor," he said, "am I being denied the right to be in court?" The judge said that if he was not present to give professional testimony, he could not therefore remain.

McManamon, flanked by two friends from Levittown seated beside him, asked what was meant by an expert.

He pointed out that he was a law enforcement officer. The judge replied that if he was not a witness who would provide expert professional medical testimony, he was therefore a lay witness and would have to leave.

McManamon Adamant

As McManamon was about to ask another question of Judge Martino to continue his fight to remain in the courtroom, Heine, who was standing near the first row of courtroom seats across the room from the Falls officer, firmly stated, "Mr. McManamon, will you please excuse yourself from court."

McManamon turned and left the courtroom.

U.N. Asks Vote On Test Delay

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The U.N. General Assembly's Main Political Committee today agreed to call up for immediate vote a resolution demanding renewal of an unexpired moratorium on nuclear tests. The roll call vote was 44-22 with 29 abstentions.

Questioning of Dr. Cohen by Heine disclosed that he concurred in Dr. Price's suggestion that Mrs. Sparks see a psychiatrist, who it turns out, was Dr. Weiner, Chief of Psychiatry at the Cherry Hill Hospital.

Heine said, "It seems he (Dr. Cohen) found a great deal of information for Mr. Pantages (the defense) and not for us (the state)."

No Reports

Dr. Cohen told the court and jury of 10 men and four women he did not know whether or not Mrs. Sparks did see Dr. Weiner, although he assumed she had. He received no reports from the psychiatrist, Dr. Cohen explained.

The state's first witness, sworn in after the noon recess and opening arguments by Heine for an hour and Pantages, for about 41 minutes, was a medical secretary from Cherry Hill Hospital. She brought the hospital records.

A new face appeared at the defense table to join Dr. Weiner and his attorneys. The man was introduced to the court as Dr. Asher Yaguda, a pathology expert. He may be serving as a defense consultant.

After Dr. Cohen had described Mrs. Sparks' condition, Pantages rose to cross-examine. In answer to questions, Dr. Cohen said he first examined Mrs. Sparks Feb. 22, 1960. Before that, the doctor said, she had been treated since July 24, 1959 by a Dr. Carl R. Blasche of Trenton.

She was then being treated for an arthritis condition. Further defense questions disclosed that Dr. Blasche had prescribed a large quantity of drugs for Mrs. Sparks and also gave her injections.

Still further cross-examination indicated that some of the drugs were what Pantages called hepatotoxic, or a drug that causes liver poisoning. One of the defense's main contentions is that some of Dr. Weiner's patients died of drug toxicity or poisoning and not serum hepatitis as the state contends.

'Could Be Harmful'

Pantages and associate defense counsel I. V. DiMartino explained to newsmen after court had closed that at least 27 different drugs, more than half of them drugs that tended to and could produce liver damage, were prescribed for Mrs. Sparks by doctors.

Questioning of Dr. Cohen by Heine disclosed that he concurred in Dr. Price's suggestion that Mrs. Sparks see a psychiatrist, who it turns out, was Dr. Weiner, Chief of Psychiatry at the Cherry Hill Hospital.

Heine said, "It seems he (Dr. Cohen) found a great deal of information for Mr. Pantages (the

Three Begin Defense In Court Trial

Three Lower Makefield Township burglary suspects began their defense yesterday afternoon, their fourth day in Bucks County Criminal Court, with one of the trio declaring he was home watching the late show on television the night most of the crimes were committed.

are William McClurg, 37, 6117 Van Dyke St., Philadelphia and Edwin Goodwin, 24, 2832 Boudnot St., Philadelphia.

They are charged with breaking into the homes of Everett S. Worth, 12 Tudor Lane; Albert Zeitell, 2108 Yardley Road; Frank Chesnut, 2222 Yardley Road and Elvin M. Brannen, 1468 Makefield Road.

Throw Out Charge

Judge Lawrence A. Monroe, upholding a motion by Goodwin's attorney, John W. Dean 3d, Middletown Township, threw out the larceny and receiving stolen goods charges relating to the Chesnut burglary. Chesnut and police witnesses said nothing was stolen from his house.

The judge rejected a motion by defense attorneys to throw out all the counts for insufficient evidence however.

Herman Bloom, Philadelphia attorney representing Smith, argued the three defendants were not actually linked with the burglaries in the testimony.

Calls Them 'Insufficient'

He said statements and testimony by Thomas Paul Chatary, 25, of E. Manheim St., Philadelphia, that he drove them to the scene were "insufficient to warrant the jury taking the case." Chatary pleaded guilty and is serving one to ten years in prison.

Judge Monroe noted that Chatary said the suspects asked him to take them there for the burglaries.

Beat 'Em To It

"He drove them up there for a purpose," Judge Monroe said, "and if they didn't commit the burglary someone beat them to it."

Eight police officers testified for the Commonwealth yesterday and most of them were subject to intensive cross examination.

They testified about Chatary's written, statement, implicating Smith, McClurg and Goodwin being read to the trio and about McClurg helping find an automatic pistol taken from the Zeitell house and thrown under a bush outside.

Officers Testify

The officers were State Trooper James Fallace, of Trevoese substation; Detective Keith R. Dane of Bethlehem State Police headquarters; Township Chief Robert Watson and Officer Charles Ronald; Sgt. John Smart, of Lower Gwynedd Township Police; Sgt. John Pratt, Springfield Township, Montgomery County, Police; Sgt. Warren Harner, Cheltenham Township Police and Lt. Herbert Mooney, Abington Township Police.

The trio is also charged with burglaries in the four last-mentioned townships, but they could not be discussed in the current trial.

Shelters Planned At State Colleges

HARRISBURG (UPI)—The State Public Instruction Department is showing its concern for fallout protection in school facilities.

Department Superintendent Charles H. Boehm said yesterday all new school buildings at the 14 state colleges will be provided with fallout shelters.

He also indicated that existing buildings will be given fallout facilities as soon as the federal government specifies the requirements for such projects.

Boehm said the department currently is approving the construction of schools which provide shelters. He explained the shelters will be used in the normal operations of the school in order to avoid extra cost or space for the building.

Pupils Advised Against Smoking

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Cancer Society reported today it has sent materials to 80 per cent of the nation's high schools advising students against smoking and the use of tobacco.

The society said that during the past year more than 12,000 copies of a filmstrip, "To Smoke or Not To Smoke," along with 3 million copies of a pamphlet, "Shall I Smoke?" were distributed to high schools and high school students.

The attorney general said there is a "technical question" as to whether the restraining order is restricted to the complainants' case. But he said local officials anywhere in the state may "feel a reluctance" to enforce a law under challenge.
